

North Shore Special Education Parent - Teacher Association
SEPTA
presents

New Directions in Understanding and Treating Social Competence in Autism Spectrum Disorders

Presented by

Matthew Lerner, Ph.D.

Director, Social Competence and Treatment Lab
Assistant Professor of Psychology, Psychiatry, & Pediatrics
Department of Psychology
Stony Brook University

Wednesday, April 22, 2015

7:30 pm

North Shore High School Library
450 Glen Cove Ave, Glen Head, NY 11545

All are welcome to attend

The Stony Brook Social Competence & Treatment Lab (SCTL), a.k.a. the "Lerner Lab," focuses on understanding how kids and teens connect to one another and make friends, and helping to develop new ways to help them to do so. The lab has a particular focus on helping those with autism spectrum disorders (ASD) and attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder (ADHD). To learn more, visit www.lernerlab.com.