

Promoting Resilience in Teens with ASD

The Social Competence & Treatment Lab (SCTL) at the Department of Psychology at Stony Brook University is conducting a research study to better understand and support emotional resilience and stress coping skills among teens with autism spectrum disorder (ASD).

We are seeking teens (ages 11- 16) to complete a research study that can be completed with 2 virtual visits and a single visit to our lab, which will take place at a later date!

Participation is completely voluntary.

The potential benefit of this research study is that it may improve emotional resilience and stress coping among participants, as well as help us to better understand how to do so for all teens with ASD.

Participants will receive a $35 gift card as thanks for their participation.

The Social Competence and Treatment Lab
Stony Brook University

631-632-7857

Lernerlab@stonybrook.edu